Tradition at Tomorrow’s Table
Banquets, Michelin Stars, and Nicky’s Special Hero

A lecture by
Prof. Roberto Ludovico
Thursday, November 17, 2016 at 12:00pm
New Academic Building, 15 Seminary Place, Room 1170

How does the history of food shed light on the current trends in gastronomic movements in Italy? This is only one of the questions that Gastronomy Studies ponders in our society’s crucial pivot in how we conceive and produce food in the age of a globalized economy.

ROBERTO LUDOVICO (Associate Professor of Italian & Program Director at University of Massachusetts-Amherst) works primarily on the literature and tradition of Italian gastronomy, Italian and European Modernism, and the literature and periodicals of the fascist era.

Sponsored by the GSA, The Italian Graduate Society and in collaboration with the Department of Italian